EDMONTON vs. PRINCE ALBERT

There is Some Chance of a Series Being Played for Fit-Reform Cup but Edmonton Hockey Club Must Run the Games

The notice at the Thistle Rink reads: "Fit-Reform games, Tuesday and Thursday next; Prince Albert and Edmonton Pros." We would all be glad to see the pros play as amateur hockey, good though it has been this season, is beginning to pall on the fans. But any challenge for the Fit-Reform Cup must be made to the Edmonton Hockey Club and must be arranged through them. If they accept the deft it is up to them to get busy and gather a team to defend the cup. It cannot be done by private individuals. Jack Windelster, Harold Decton and Bert Boulton are fully aware of this fact and say that though they are all perfectly willing to get out and defend the cup, they can only do so under the auspices of the club.

A challenge was accepted yesterday from Prince Albert for the Fit-Reform trophy but it has not yet been accepted. Meanwhile it is extremely unlikely next week will see any pro games for the cup, though a couple of exhibition games with Prince Albert may be pulled off.

A despatch from the southern city, after telling how they so gallantly won the championship, says:

"The local club expects games to be pulled off in the Alberta capital next week and to the regular team will be added Bailey of Portage la Prairie, Charlie Haddock of Winnipeg and others. The team will tour Alberta and Saskatchewan."

"They will travel in a private car, the expense of which is being paid by the city council and board of trade. Games will be played at Calgary, Lacombe, Macleod, Stettler, Lethbridge, Moose Jaw, Weyburn, Regina, and Moosemin. The tour will require at least two weeks' time. The line-up of the team will be as follows:

Goal, A. Leach; point, J. Bennett; center-point, Bert McDowell; rover, C. Leach; centre, R. Banks; right wing, F. Black; left wing, R. Crawford (captain); Spares, Charlie Haddock and Bailey."

Saturday's Draws.
McDonald vs. Dobson.
McCauley vs. J. Dewar.
Dunlop vs. Garrison.
Robertson vs. J. W. Morris.
The single competitions start Monday and as the season is short, it is hoped that a large number will enter. Four gold medals are being hung up as prizes.

The actual paid admissions at the Mutual street rink, Toronto, Saturday night at the St. Mike's Saturday game, numbered 2,980, making over $1,200. The biggest crowd ever there previously was two years ago, when 2,850 saw Toronto and Brantford professionals play.

Nicholson, the old Shamrock and International League ice skater, appeared in goal for Halleybury Saturday owing to the absence of Moran, who is said to have left for Quebec owing to the illness of his mother.

LOHR WILL MANAGE WINNIPEG

Last Year's Leader Will Attempt to Land Maroons in First Place—Old Favorites Retained

Frank Lohr, who will manage the Winnipeg Maroons, has arrived in that city and is now occupying himself gathering a team which he hopes will be strong enough to land the Western Canada pennant.

Last year Lohr was badly injured in the second week of the season while playing at Brandon and was out of the game for the season. After a long stay in the Black Hills of South Dakota he is in prime condition and will be able to do himself justice in 1910.

Manager Lohr considers the league race will be much closer this year, and while he has all of last year's men under contract he expects there will be several changes on the way roll. Among the old favorites to be retained are Jack Beatty, Heinie Kruger, Collins and Harold Bond. Frank does not say anything about Larry Piper, but the gymnastic outfielder will probably be found holding down the old stand.

WILLIE HOPPE ALSO RAN

A French Count Arranges a Match with the Billiard Champion and gets Suddenly Ill

One of the sharpest billiard tricks that ever came under my observation was perpetrated by an alleged Count in Belgium, two years ago, when I was playing there. I had just finished an exhibition when the Count approached me and invited me to play a game with him, writes Willie Hoppe. I tried to excuse myself, but he insisted, and as some of my American friends urged me to play, I did so. He apparently had great confidence in his ability and offered to bet a bottle of wine that he would win. Then he asked me how many points we should play, and I told him it was immaterial to me.

"Then," said he, "we will play till one of us becomes weary and signifies a desire to quit."

I consented to this condition, and we chalked and banked. To my surprise he won the bank and counted from the spot. Then he laid down his cue and said with a yawn:

"Pardon, Meester Hoppe, but I am so fatigued I can play no longer," whereupon there was a general laugh. I thought the joke was so good a one that I bought the bottle of wine without a murmur. But I discovered the next day that the Count was a fox and stung one of the onlookers for a $200 wager.

At the most, the Count could have lost more than the bottle of wine, for he had lost the bank, and would have bought the wine and disappeared. He was a fairly good billiard player and had evidently practiced at the bank till he was very proficient. He got away immediately after collecting the $200, and no doubt went in search of new pastures.

WHITE SOX EN ROUTE

Travelling in all the Luxury of a Private Team, Every Move they Make is the Basis for a Story

Lardner, in Tribune.

The train came down from Chicago so fast that no one got enough sleep. Alonzo Brown and C. W. Vandevoort slept through to French Lick. They thought at first they would have to walk back, as the next car does not start despatching the Sabbath until 8 o'clock, but the train being an accommodating accommodation, decided to turn right around and convey the two drowsy pitchers to their destination.

There wasn't a chance to do anything here today but drink water and sleep. No one appeared to want to bowl. Frank Schulte led the gang to the springs and ordered a glass of No. 7 with a cherry in it. He got all but the cherry. Frank has learned a new bunch of stories besides having at his tongue's end some original poetry which makes Mr. Lowmy look blue. He is going to produce a masterpiece called "What Are Left-handed Pitchers." The first verse follows:

Why do they have left-handers?
Why do they let them live?
Nobody likes left-handers,
Then why do they let them live?
If I ever own a ball team
My first great task will be
To chase the congame murderers
Right down to Kanabole.

The Worst Is Yet to Come?
More of this awful piece will appear day by day as it is produced. Naturally there was a p. g. on the train from Chicago. Shulte broke in for the last post and opened it with a pair of tenns. As it was a jacket, this was extreme carelessness on his part. A party with a pair of four made a bet and Shulte couldn't call because to do so might have necessitated his showing his openers. As it was he threw them into the discard and the four spots went through.

Hans Lobert of the Cincinnati Reds is training all by his lonesome. He looks just about right. He can talk of nothing but Cincinnati's runaway race for the pennant. Stanley Robinson, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is working out over at French Lick for the benefit of his 'bird. He came over to visit today, but no one knew him on account of the decorations. Tom Needham said he looked like the hedge around the Needham home in Steubenville, O.

Most of the players were surprised to find out this morning that Artie Hoffman was not present with us. No one saw him on the train, to be sure, but it was thought he was riding in a hat bag in the baggage coach. Manager Chance, however, said Artie had no intention of coming last night, but will report here Tuesday morning.

Banquet to Keeler.

Plans have been completed for the banquet at Plainfield, N. J., to Willie Keeler, the famous outfielder of the New York Highlanders. It will take place in the Trojans Hotel on the evening of February 21. A telegram of acceptance from Willie has been received by the chairman of the banquet committee, and the affair promises to be one of the famous baseball player will remember. Keeler graduated from the old Plainfield Crescents in 1892 and went to Birmingham Club of the Eastern League. His progress since that time is baseball history. Judge William N. Runyon, a rabid fan, will preside as toast-master at the feast, and Samuel S. John McCutcheon, third baseman of the Yale team of 1892, will speak. Both Judge Runyon and Mr. McCutcheon were famous players. All the old members of the Crescents will be on hand to welcome their distinguished guest, and a great time is expected.

The Renfrew promoters will lose over $11,000 on the very short season, and are tied up for at least $6,000 more.

WILL PROTECT THE PUBLIC

Big Tim Sullivan who is Stakeholder for Big Fight says if There is Anything Crooked About it, the Winner Won't get Cash

New York, March 4.—"Big Tim" Sullivan, stakeholder for the Johnson-Jeffries fight, who has already $50,000 fight money in his possession and will have $120,000 when the fighters climb into the ring, declares that if there is any crookedness in the big battle, the fighters will have to come to a New York court to get the money out of him.

"A good many thousands dollars will be bet on this fight," said Sullivan today, "and I propose to protect the bettors. If I feel there is anything wrong about the fight I will denounce it publicly, cut all bets on it and they will have to collect in a New York court from me."

"It is a hundred dollars to a lawyer that the fight will be on the level. I watched these fighters while the match was being discussed here. No more bitter enemies ever lived. It will be a grudge fight."

"If there is any talk of the public being double-crossed, I will run it down. I have received $50,000 cash from each of the fighters and $20,000 from the club. On June 8th the club hands me $30,000 more, and 48 hours before the fight takes place I am to receive the balance of the purse, so that I will have $120,000 in my possession when I sit at the ring-side."

"If either of them can win in a round he will do it. The pictures don't mean anything. The winner's share amounts to $75,000, and if either man can win that in a punch he will do so."

HOW'S THIS PRINCE ALBERT?

A Communication Received in Edmonton from Saskatoon says that City was Jockeyed out of the Championship

By what right does Prince Albert challenge for the Fit-Reform Cup? They call themselves the champions of Saskatchewan, but there seems to be some difference of opinion as to their right to the title. A letter was received yesterday by a prominent Edmonton hockeyist that throws a little light on that mysterious meeting which ruled out the last Prince Albert-Saskatoon game.

It appears that the president of the league resides in Davidson. One morning the Prince Albert club wired asking him to call a meeting in their city that evening. They knew, but the Doctor didn't, that the only train he could catch was six hours late, and consequently would not get him into Prince Albert until after the meeting was over. Saskatoon was calmly ignored and not even allowed to have a delegate present to speak in their defence.

Imagining the spectacle of a meeting composed of Prince Albert delegates solemnly considering the merits of a protest in which their club was concerned! After all the "iniquities" of the Saskatoon team were laid bare, the meeting called the game out and gave Prince Albert the championship. Naturally the feeling in the former city is at fever pitch and they are determined to balk any attempt "the champions" may make to play in Edmonton. They wired in a formal protest to the local hockey club today and it is very probable this city will not be included in the comprehensive itinerary the touring Prince Albert septette has mapped out.

The strange feature of the case is that Prince Albert have included in their line-up two members of the Saskatoon Hoo-Hoo, deadly rivals of the Strathcona, which is the name of the team who had the championship snatched from it. Hockey in Saskatchewan must be governed by a strange executive.

ON THE EVE OF THE BATTLE

Ice at Ottawa This Evening will be Similar to that on Which Edmonton Played First Cup Game

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Ottawa, March 5.—The soft ice for tonight's game favors the Ottawas. The Cup Holders have been successful on the sticky surface so far. The training handed out to Edmonton under similar conditions makes them feel confident. The rumor is denied that Ottawas intend to sacrifice game for home and home series. They prefer the cup instead of gate receipts. The officials will likely be Joe Powers, referee, and Chancery Kirby, judge of play.

Monday evening's Capital will have a full account of this important hockey match writing especially for this paper.

STETTLER vs. LACOMBE

This is not a Hockey Match but Just a Roast Handed to the Latter—Cooke is a Good Player

A gentleman from Stettler had occasion to drop off the train at Lacombe the other day and after vainly looking for hours in search of a human being upon the busy streets, finally discovered a man. In the conversation which ensued, this is what the lone citizen of Lacombe said:

"Why, we have the sportiest town along the line, and if you want proof just read this number of the 'Western Globe.' Now the editor wouldn't say we were sporty if we weren't, would he? And say, we sure have a hockey team; and they're smart, too. Yes, they've got it on all these other towns. Yes, of course, Stettler did beat us, but we refused to play anything but an exhibition game, and they gave us a hundred dollars to do that. Yes, and lots of the Lacombe people get in free too. Well, he he! you see it was this way. We telephoned Stettler to send two tickets for us to sell, and then the crowd just walked past the doorkeeper and told him we had tickets, and next day we sent the tickets back and said we couldn't sell 'em. Pretty clever that, eh? Yes, and when Stettler was up here we won pretty near five hundred dollars in bets, too, and after the game we were going home, but they thought we were such good sports they'd buy a supper for us, and they did, too. Yes, sure. We sure have a hockey team. Why, look what they did to Edmonton. Why, after the game five of the Edmonton team had to visit a doctor. Who plays? Well, there's Cooke. Some people are kicking about him because he has not been here since the first of October. Well, there's a couple more on the team haven't, either, but bless you, they don't know that. Cooke is a mighty good player. Lethbridge wanted to keep him but Lacombe had too much money. Say, mister, you ain't from Red Deer, are you? You are! Well, I want you to understand we haven't got a man on our team that does not live up to the rules. We don't like Red Deer people here. We wouldn't even let their station agent sell them tickets to ride on the special we ran to Stettler. You're going, are you? Well, good-bye. But say, if I put these lots in at $2.35 each could we deal? No? Well, good-bye."

And I wandered down the road.

A New World's Record.

Rochester, March 2.—Larry Sutton, who won the individual championship at the last American Bowling Congress, established what is believed to be a world's tenpin record by averaging 251 for nine games. His scores were 252, 273, 199, 234, 267, 255, 246, 245, 272.

STORIES OF AD. WOLGAST

Here is a Dispatch From the New Champion's Home Town Telling of His Start and Career

Califall, Mich., March 5.—Ad. Wolgast, conqueror of Battling Nelson and won lightweight championship of the world, rode into the prize ring by beating his way on a freight from Cadillac to Petoskey.

That was less than four years ago. Today he is the leader of his class in the fighting game, and in that time has had but one decision given against him. Curiously enough, the only boy who ever beat Wolgast was one who adopted the name of his latest victim and went under the name of "Young" Nelson. This took place at Grand Rapids July 12, 1905.

Just now the most joyful Yoen in the United States is Cadillac, Mich. Residents of the little place began celebrating Tuesday evening when news came that Ad Wolgast had beaten Battling Nelson. They haven't stopped yet, but pretty soon they are going to rest up, so that the citizens of that burg will be in shape to give the new champion a royal welcome home.

The residents of Cadillac are up in arms against Milwaukee for claiming to be the home of the new champ, and they have all the odds over the foam city, for it is here that Wolgast's entire family lives at the present time, and it was there that the new champion first saw the light of day February 8, 1888.

Starts as Cigar-maker.

Wolgast's father was a cigar-maker, and when young Ad. was old enough to get into the money making line he went with his father and learned the gentle art of turning out perfects. This did pretty well until he was 18 years old. Then he saw there wasn't much chance to make any great amount of money in the cigar business. He became restless but going into the fighting had never entered his head. He had had a few street fights, as any boy will, but he had never had a boxing glove on.

During this restless period news drifted into Cadillac that there was to be a fight at Petoskey. Young Wolgast heard them talking about it and decided he wanted to see the mill. He had never seen a ring battle before. He didn't have any coin in his pockets, but the freight slow down going through Cadillac, and they have to stop at Petoskey or go into Lake Michigan. Therefore the future champion hopped one of these freights and landed in Petoskey on the afternoon of the battle. Then he found that it wasn't as easy to beat his way into the arena as it had been to get into town. He stuck at the entrance. After a while the promoter came to the door with a worried look on his face. One of the boys billed to go on in the preliminary had failed to show up. He wanted some one to go on.

Wolgast's First Fight.

Adolph W. decided that he would be willing to stand up before the other guy for a chance of seeing the big go, and in addition pull down two whole dollars and a half. This was as good as two days' work with his father in the cigar shop. "Kid" Moore was the boy he had to face. The kid had been out a few times and was looking pretty good to the fight followers of Petoskey.

Wolgast didn't know anything about boxing. Neither does history tell who seconded him in this first mill. The main fact is that he borrowed a pair of trunks, waded into "Kid" Moore, and by dint of bushing and fighting every minute, won 6 decisions after six rounds. He felt proud of himself after that victory and some of the Cadillac sports reckoned that they had a winner.

Wolgast is only 22 years old and is a clean cut little chap, only 5 feet 4½ inches in height, but wonderfully built around the shoulders. He hasn't a bad habit, beyond the occasional smoking of a cigar. Fighting is his

BICYCLE RACE FOR TORONTO

The Queen City is to Have its First Six Day Race—All the Foreign Crack Riders will Compete

Arrangements are being made to pull off a six-day bicycle race in Toronto, and the Rik-Finnigan firm of sports will do the promoting. The St. Lawrence Market, an immense arena, will be procured and a saucer track, nine laps to the mile, constructed. One of these endurance tests is now going on at Buffalo and the same riders will compete in Toronto.

The idea of men gliding around a small track, hour after hour, seems the height of monotony, but in reality a six-day race is the most fascinating game in the world to watch.

In New York, where the sport has a firm hold, yearly contests are held in Madison Square Garden and the attendance grows in volume each season. People go to the Garden to see the men started on their long grind and do not leave until the winner is declared. Cots are taken by some of the more plutocratic, while the more plebeian fans content themselves with the soft side of a board for their downy couch. There are refreshment booths, both wet and dry, within the gardens, and the inevitable hot dog man, who does a roaring trade.

In the quiet part of the day, while the riders are reeling off lap after lap, the audience dozes, keeping, however, one eye on the track. But the instant a rider starts out in a mad sprint to steal a lap, all the back benches awake, the band plays some inspiring march and the regulars cheer their favorites with wild shouts. When the effort is either successful or the other competitors feel the aspirant's predatory attempt, the riders slow down to their regulation speed and the crowd settles down again to its apathetic calm.

It is a sight to watch the crowd gazing out of the Garden at the finish of the race, men carrying all kinds of household effects and showing the result of their long vigil by the six days' growth of beard. Truly a sport that can arouse such excitement in old Gotham cannot fail to make a hit in Toronto, though the riders will only race from two in the afternoon until midnight of each day.

Broke Canuck Records.

Toronto, March 4.—At the W.E. Y.M.C.A. arena tonight three new Canadian records were made. G. Goulding did the two-mile walk in 13:33.35. The old record was 13:50.

E. B. Archibald, the British-Canadian pole vaulter, vaulted 11 feet 6 inches. The old outdoor record is 10 feet 2 inches.

Jack Tait did the two mile run in 9:42.25 seconds, cutting several seconds off the old record. The International relay race was won by the 7th regiment of Buffalo against a picked team, including Bobby Kerr.

Although the London Olympic games were held only about eighteen months ago, fully one-third of the great team which represented the United States are not actively interested in amateur athletics.

A Marathon Derby for a championship belt and sweepstakes will be run off at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, on March 19. The money will be divided among those who finish within a certain time. game. He is wise enough to realize that the fast life gets them all, and when he is training for a battle no power on earth can get him out of his quarters after nine o'clock at night. Under such conditions Wolgast should hang on to the championship for many years to come, and he'll be one of the most popular champions the game has ever known.

MR. HOPKINS

AFFIDAVIT

In Which he Explicitly Denies the Charges Made by Mr. Bennett

The following is the affidavit from M. W. Hopkins, placed on the table of the Legislature on Tuesday afternoon:

Province of Alberta,
City of Edmonton.

To wit:

In the matter of certain charges made by R. B. Bennett, K.C., junior member for the city of Calgary in the Legislature of Alberta, on the second day of March, 1910.

And in the matter of the Automatic Telephone Company.

1. That I never told Mr. Cushing or any other person that the Hon. Mr. Cross had asked me to suggest to him that I should communicate with the company or any of the individuals referred to in the evidence.

2. That neither the Hon. Mr. Cross, Attorney General for the province of Alberta, or any other member of the government or any officer or employee thereof ever at any time either directly or indirectly asked me to or suggested to me either directly or indirectly that I should communicate in any way with the Automatic Electric Company, or any officer or representative thereof or with John Wylie or any other person in any capacity with regard to the installation of any Automatic Telephone System in Calgary or with regard to any contribution from the company or from any of the individuals mentioned to any campaign fund whatsoever for the purposes of the Attorney-General or any other person or party, or to any person for the benefit of any campaign or other fund.

3. That I never represented to or suggested to the Automatic Electric Company or to any officer or representative thereof or to John Wylie or any other person in any capacity that I had any authority from the Hon. Mr. Cross or any other member of the government of Alberta or any officer or employee thereof or from the government as a whole to communicate or that any of these persons had suggested to me either directly or indirectly that I should communicate with the company or any officer or representative thereof, or with John Wylie or any other person on the subject of the Calgary Telephone Exchange or on the subject of any contribution from any of them to any campaign or other election fund or to any person for the benefit of any campaign or other fund.

4. That I never told Mr. Cushing or any other person that the Hon. Mr. Cross had asked me to suggest to him that I should communicate with the company or any of the individuals referred to in the evidence with regard to the Calgary Telephone Exchange for any campaign contribution of any kind.

5. That I never told Mr. Cushing or any other person for the purpose of communicating to Mr. Cushing or otherwise that if the (Mr. Cushing) would agree to a contribution of $12,000.00 or any other sum to the funds of the Attorney-General or any other election or campaign fund any deal would go through for $50,000.00 or any other sum or that any person could keep any switchboards.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act."

Declared before me at the city of Edmonton, in the province of Alberta this 3rd day of March, A. D. 1910.

M. W. HOPKINS.

JOSEPH A. CLARKE,

A Commissioner for taking affidavits in and for the Province of Alberta.

A dispatch from Windsor, Ont., says: W. E. Casten, a wealthy resident of Alberta, landed in Detroit last night. A short time after his arrival he found his way to the police headquarters and complained that someone had stolen $500 from him the night before while he was seeing the sights. Casten was taken to various residences, but was unable to locate any place to which he had been.

$257.05 PAID IN MAGISTRATE'S FINES

Nine Cases up Before Police Court Show that Police have Something to Think About

Magistrate Cowan had a busy time of it in the police court this morning, disposing of nine cases in double quick time and assessing fines, with costs, aggregating $257.05.

Two drunks, one breach of a city bylaw, one vagrant, a keeper and an inmate of a disorderly house, two cases of obstructing the police in the discharge of their duty, and one case of carrying a concealed weapon, constituted the calendar.

The Three Galicians.

The three Galicians that the police gathered in as the result of the free-for-all fight at the Galician wedding in Ketter's Hall on Kinistino avenue about one o'clock yesterday morning, were disposed of with heavy fines and a severe lecture and warning from the bench. William Eljak, on a charge of disorderly conduct, was fined $20 and costs, yesterday afternoon, and Adolf Hladki and Mike Osmak were fined this morning. Both were assessed $20 and costs amounting to $60, or two months at Fort Saskatchewan with hard labor, on charges of interfering with the police while they were trying to make an arrest.

Osmak was also fined $20 and costs or thirty days for carrying a heavy iron bolt, wrapped up in a handkerchief. It made a perfect slung-shot and when Mike Osmak asked Mike what he wanted with a weapon of that sort, Osmak replied: "Somebody assaulted me the night before, so I take it to hit him on the head with it if he try it again when I go home." Osmak, who is a section foreman on the G.T.P., assured the court that he had had an invitation to the wedding all right.

Jail Next Time.

"If I fine you fellows this time," declared his worship in giving sentence, "but this is the last time. If I can't make you behave yourselves with fines, I'll send you to jail without the option of a fine."

All three paid the fines.

Frank Radin and W. H. Ayling were each fined $4 and costs or 10 days for being drunk on the street yesterday.

Alex. McDougall left his horse standing on Sixth street without being properly secured, and as a result paid $3 and costs.

Elizabeth Spence was fined $20 and costs or three months in the R.N.W.M.P. barracks for keeping a disorderly house on Kinistino avenue, and Rosie Jones got $20 and costs or two months for being an inmate of the same place. Charles Wolfe was fined $10 and costs or thirty days at the barracks in Calgary for being a frequenter. As they hadn't the money, all three were handed over to the Mounted Police.

Yacht Founders Off Florida.

Dayton, Florida, March 4.—An unknown vessel foundered on a bar about six miles off the coast here at five o'clock this evening. It was a two-masted steam yacht with one funnel. The yacht came down the coast from the north and was running close in, something unheard of by e, owing to the Snapper Banks.

At first when the vessel stopped it was thought that a mooring of the night had been made, but she lay after dark four red and two white lights were sent up. No boat was towed to Jacksonville has been notified as there is no wireless station or life-saving corps here. Even the meaning of the signals was not understood.

CHILDREN TAKE SICK AT SCHOOL

East End Ratepayers at Organization Meeting Condemn Norwood Slaughter House

In their efforts to have the slaughterhouse situated near Norwood school removed, the ratepayers of that district may decide to boycott the school until some remedial measures are taken by the city council. This matter was fully discussed at a meeting of the ratepayers of Norwood, held in Oddfellows' Hall last night to organize the Edmonton Municipal Improvement League. The statement was made that children often came home from the school sick from the effects of the stench arising from the slaughterhouse and filling the school rooms. The idea was also advanced that the school board be petitioned to take out an injunction against the proprietors of the slaughterhouse.

The Jasper avenue extension also came in for criticism, and it was suggested that steps be taken to provide funds to defeat this bill. This matter was fully discussed at the meeting next Thursday night, when the election of officers will take place. Nominations of candidates for the various offices were made as follows: President, Mr. E. Perry and Dr. Collins; first vice-president, O. C. Sloan and R. Scott; second vice-president, T. Downes and Rev. W. A. Lewis; secretary, Dr. Collins, J. A. Clarke, H. McEachran and W. Bloomer; treasurer, Mr. A. Killips and E. Wright; executive committee, F. Fullmer, F. Duncan, D. B. Lake, J. A. Shurrock, T. Crowe, J. A. Barric, W. C. McArthur.

The election of officers will take place at a meeting to be held next Thursday night, when further nominations will also be made.

WILL A DARK HORSE COME TO THE FRONT?

Remember that Every Race is Won at the Wire and not Before—People Have a Bad Habit of Betting on Favorites and Getting Terribly Jarred by a 50 to 1 Shot that Flashes from the Bunch and Wins by an Eyclash.

If anyone ever entertained a doubt of the success and magnitude of this great enterprise or had any doubt as to the amount of interest it would create, that doubt has long since been dispelled and scoffers have disappeared.

There are always a few people of this calibre in every community, and 50,000 votes look like that many dollars to them, while real live ones only smile and say, "A hundred thousand—what's that?"

Don't Get Discouraged. The race is getting short, and all that is necessary is to take a long breath, throw your chest out and make a deliberate onslaught on the natives and make them "stand and deliver."

Two or three of the candidates have a notion that they can "lay back in the harness" until the last few days before the polls are closed and then come on with a rush and win one of the prizes.

The contest man thinks that the three-day idea is a mistake. For persons who are as popular as the contestants in the present race it would be impossible for them to see all their friends in a few days.

They might put on a full head of steam and cover lots of ground, but it is a physical impossibility for one person to get in touch with all the people that will be willing to boost them in the short space of three days.

But remember this: There will be almost a score of other people interested in the final result of the game who will be rounding up their scattered friends in the same three days, and may "cut in" on your preservers with disastrous results.

So don't be the late one. Remember the double vote offer ends one week from Monday night. Every subscription turned in this week means more than the same subscription turned in after March 14th. Get all you possibly can before the close of the offer.

Hot Air Stories. And, above all else, pay no attention to rumors as to how many this or that candidate has. Such hot air stories are bound to be circulated, and, in fact, it sometimes pays to bluff a little.

If you scare some week-end individual out of the race in that manner—that's good "conterstries." Run your own campaign to suit yourself. Keep under cover until it's a showdown or else make a show of strength occasionally. But be from strength and, in fact, it sometimes pays to bluff a little. If you scare some week-end individual out of the race in that manner—that's good "conterstries." Run your own campaign to suit yourself. Keep under cover until it's a showdown or else make a show of strength occasionally. But be from strength

When a Buddhist prays he implores his god that when he dies he shall not be cursed by being born again as a woman or as a vermin. That is the attitude of the native men of India toward women, and against such missionaries in the Orient are directed all their energy.

Dr. Eleanor Stephenson, a Brooklyn woman, who has been practicing medicine in India for three years, and who is now returning to her work there, makes an appeal to the women of this continent to go out there.

"I want the women here to realize what it means to be born in America," she said today. "To be born where a woman is the backbone of the man, his strength and help in every way. Why, out in Alameda, where my work is, a woman is no more than an animal. She is for the purpose of raising children, and that is all. A man thinks more of his cow—if he is lucky enough to have one—than he does of his wife.

A Hindu husband will let his wife die before he will call in a man to give her medical or surgical treatment. That shows the need for women physicians in the Orient."

In Alameda, which is an inland plateau about a hundred miles from Bombay, there are two physicians, Dr. Ruth Hume and Dr. Stephenson, and one American trained nurse, Miss Johnson. Under Miss Johnson there are fourteen European women who have had some slight training and these help with the nursing. In the mission hospital which this handful of women run, 15,000 people were treated last year, an average of forty-one a day. These folk have come from a radius of about fifty miles, though some special cases have come as far as 300 miles.

The Rev. Alden H. Clark, who is an educational missionary at the same place as Dr. Stephenson, gives some interesting figures about the number of nurses and doctors in the Orient. "There are probably," he says, "not more than 100 nurses in the entire missionary world, and there are 800,000 people in non-Christian lands who have no medical aid except missionary physicians. All Christians have sent out only 500 medical missionaries, male or female, and this body maintains 348 hospitals, ninety-seven leper asylums and twenty-one clinics for native women."

"One physician who had no nurse to help him, treated 18,000 cases in a year. So you can see that the supply of trained medical assistance is woefully inadequate."

"In Calcutta, which has the best facilities in the Orient, three-fifths of the population die without any doctor or other trained medical assistance in their final illness. In China there are probably one American or European trained doctor to every million and a half of people. In the United States there are 10,000 physicians and 22,000 nurses, an average of one physician to every 550 people."

"Of course we do a great deal of actual nursing, and that is most important," Dr. Stephenson says, "but another thing which is even bigger, is this. We show women who have thought themselves wholly unloved that some one cares for them. They know that there is a very small consideration given us and that what we do is done for love. So they love us."

"When I see women physicians struggling for a living here and know what a field there is in India, I feel as though they must be told."

"The kind of work I have been doing is a terrific appeal to the sympathies. We have to respect caste, which makes nearly all of our cases long standing. One woman whom I treated came to me with her entire arm in a gangrenous condition. She had picked her finger seven months before, at the time of her husband's death. One account of her case she could not so much as leave the house for the seven months, during which time septicemia set in and went up as far as her shoulder. I told her that her arm would have to be amputated. She refused absolutely to part with it, and died as a result."

"Another woman burned her knee and turned up at the hospital five months later with that part of her leg in terrible condition. The leg was cut off and the woman made a perfect recovery."

"I went many miles into the interior to see an injured woman. She had fallen down a well and was fearfully bruised all over. I found her lying on the floor grinding corn, every turn of her arm causing the most intense agony. She couldn't bear to have me even touch her, she was suffering so. I told her husband she had to be taken to the hospital or she would die, and he asked who would cook the bread if she were gone. He refused to allow her to go. All I could do was to leave a little medicine."

Dr. Stephenson finds that the natives invariably prefer using ointments to clean dressings. Women come in large numbers to get ointments for raw sores where their husbands have beaten and cut them, and they are full of gratitude to the doctor. She finds that those of high class are just as brutally treated and just as grateful as the lowest.

"Transmigration is one of the strongest beliefs in India," she says, "and on that account the people will not kill any animal, not even a flea. As a result the poor homes are overrun with bedbugs and other vermin, which spread all sorts of fevers and diseases."

"And another of their ideas is that we don't know anything about raising babies. Hindu mothers, without exception, give opium to their babies to make them sleep while they work in the fields. As a result, a large proportion of the little Hindu babies die before they are a year old. Most of the work among the natives is surgical, and the obstetric cases are the most interesting. This is because the natives have medicines of their own, but know nothing of the use of knife."

CLUBS NOT OFFER LIQUOR

ers, etc. It had improved the life of the town more than anything else. Camrose used to be called Camboose. It could not be called that now. The Canadian Club in a town was as good as a Y. M. C. A. It afforded all recreation for young men required."

Commenting on hotel life in small towns he said he did not like to see liquor shoved in front of young fellows all the time, as it was when the camera was right off the bar room. Mr. Smith said the government and liquor department could not control and inspect these clubs as a hotel. The law could not be carried out. He said that in England the greatest trouble was the sale of liquor in clubs. The license bill was thrown out on this account. The greatest nuisance was from clubs who claimed vested interests. In Alberta the same trouble would soon arise with clubs being formed all over the province. He thought this now was the time to do away with the danger.

"They tell me the hotels are much to frequent," said Mr. Smith. "If so, it is high time to clean them up. They can stand it easily. Hotels in small towns should be compelled to provide more rooms for people who do not care to mingle with drunken people."

Mr. Boyle, Sturgeon, said he agreed with the member for Camrose. He said the manner of dispensing liquor was disgusting. The law required that it be dispensed over a bar not even allowing a chair in the bar. He would abolish the bar and have liquor dispensed in refreshment rooms. Clubs were organized, he said, because of the way liquor was dispensed and were entitled to hold a liquor privilege until the government was prepared to change the system of selling liquor in hotels. The raising of the standard of hotels so that liquor could be dispensed decently was necessary before club rules should be changed.

"The government has had the matter under discussion for some time," said Hon. Mr. Cross, "and would like to bring down a general act relating to clubs." He invited suggestions as to what could be done. In reply to a question by Mr. Woolf, Mr. Cross said that as the law now stands licenses are not issued to clubs but are considered as an individual in his liquor license. In local divisions, however, the general act was wide enough to prohibit the sale of liquor there.

Mr. O'Brien, Socialist member, said he saw no reason why there should not be some "Joyful" in the clubs. At the low rates many hotels charge they could not well dispense liquor other than they did. He said he liked liquor himself and did not get as much as he would like. He was willing to support the club privileges in respect to the sale of liquor.

Premier Rutherford referred to the Canadian club at Camrose having the liquor clause in its charter. Mr. Smith replied that never a drop of liquor had been sold there but to be consistent he would see that the members applied to have the clause struck out.

Others who spoke were Mr. McDougall, Edmonton; Dr. Warnock, Pincher, and Mr. McLeod, Leduc.

In moving the second reading of the bill respecting witnesses in evidence, Hon. Mr. Cross said there was no such act at the present time. The bill follows practically the Ontario Act, with the Scottish Act inserted which enables one to swear by the uplifted hand. One or two minor changes in it might be discussed in committee of the whole House. In answer to Mr. O'Brien, the Attorney-General said it provided also for affirming. Mr. Roberts, High River, suggested that provision be made for Chinese oaths.

Mr. O'Brien, Rocky Mountain, speaking to the second reading of the Coal Mines Act, said the bill had for its object the betterment of conditions for men working in the mines, particularly protection to the lives of those engaged in coal mining. It was an effort to get more safety for the miners. Accidents could be avoided if the laws now existing were better lived up to. One of the most important features of the bill was that two shafts were required in each mine to lessen the danger. He said that he knew of a coal mine near Edmonton where 16 to 18 men were at work underground and only one shaft existed. An accident was liable to happen any time accompanied by loss of life.

Premier Rutherford did not rise to oppose the bill but noticed that the legislation was more advanced than the legislation of Nova Scotia and Great Britain. This fact was evidence that the bill should be given great consideration in committee of the whole. The output of coal is about one-third of that of Nova Scotia, but the increase of coal in Alberta was very great. It is only a matter of time when Alberta coal would go east as was Winnipeg. In his opinion mining education would follow next in importance to agriculture. Alberta might very well take this up in the future in technical schools especially in mining centres.

Mr. Walker, Fort Saskatchewan, said he had worked in mines himself, and so no mine owner should be able to operate with a single shaft. In coal mining proper ventilation was very important, but the bill in this respect was far more advanced than the British Columbia Act. In the matter of manholes the legislation asked for was much in advance. He quite agreed with Mr. O'Brien as regarding insurance but thought that too much should not be left to them. The inspector would only have to see that the spirit of the law was carried out and not to be called upon to define what the law meant.

Hon. Mr. Cross spoke briefly to the second reading of the act respecting travelling on Public Highways. It was explained that the custom in this province was to turn to the right, whereas the English law was to turn to the left. The bill would make the uniform regulation all over the province to turn to the right on public highways.

Petitions presented were respecting incorporation of the Order of Franciscan Friars, enfranchisement of married women owning property, incorporation of Y. M. C. A. in Edmonton and the extension of borrowing powers for the town of Calmar.

Twelve bills received the second reading and are now ready for consideration in committee of the whole. Mr. Smith, Camrose, acted as deputy speaker yesterday for the consideration in committee of the whole of the act granting further powers to the town of Raymond.

The Man From Brodneys

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"My dear man, that would put after us a deal of trouble cleaning up them."

Meanwhile it may be well to depict the situation from the enemy's point of view—the enemy being the islanders as a unit. They were prepared to abide by the terms of the will so long as it remained clear to them that fair treatment came from the opposing interests. Russia, the Ararat lawyer, in mass meeting had discussed the document. They understood its requirements and its restrictions; they knew by this time that there was small chance of the original beneficiaries coming into the property under the provisions. Later came the news that marriage between the heirs was out of the question. Then the islanders laughed as they talked. But they were not to be caught napping. Jacob von Blitz, the superintendent, stood German that he was, saw far into the future. It was he who set the native lawyer unceremoniously aside and urged competent representation in London. The great law firm headed by Sir John Brodneys was chosen. A wide awake representative of the distinguished solicitors was now on his way to the island with the swartzy committee which had created so much interest in the metropolis during its brief stay.

Jacob von Blitz came to the island when he was twenty years old. It was twenty years before the death of Tsarist Slogans. He had worked in the South African diamond fields and had no difficulty in securing employment with Slogans and Wyckholme.

von Blitz was showed enough to see that the grandchildren were not coming to the island for the mere pleasure of sojourning there; their motive was plain. It was he who advised—even commended—the lords of servants to desert the chateau.

He lived, with his three wives, in the hills just above and south of the town itself. The Englishmen who worked in the bank and the three Boer foremen also had houses up there, where, as was said, but von Blitz was the only one who practiced polygamy.

His wives were Persian women and handsome after the Persian fashion. One day, after afternoon about a week after the reopening of the chateau, the sisters of a swartzy population was startled by the shouts of those who were impatient watch of the sea. First minutes later the whole town of Ararat knew that the smoke of a steamer lay low on the horizon. No one on the boat that was bringing Russia and the English solicitor. Jy turned to exultation when the word came down from von Blitz that it was the long looked for steamship, the Sir Joshua.

von Blitz stood at the entrance, ready to welcome Russia and his comrades and to be the first to clasp the hand of the man from Brodneys.

At last his figure could be made out on the forward deck. His straw hat was at least a head higher than the rufian of Russia, who was indicating to him the interesting spots in his island.

"He's big," commented von Blitz comfortably, more to himself than to his neighbor. "And young," he added a few minutes later. Bowles, standing at his side, offered the single comment:

"Good looking."

As the last stranger stepped from the boat to the pier von Blitz turned a look of triumph upon Britt, who had followed through the crowd a moment before and was standing close by.

The newcomer was an American!

"I've sighted the enemy!" exclaimed Bobby Browne, coming up from Neptune's pool—the largest of the fountains. His wife and Lady Deppingham were cooing in the courtyard under the hanging garden. "Would you care to have a peck at him?"

"I should think so," said his wife, jumping to her feet. "It's been on the island three days, and we haven't had a glimpse of him. Come along, Lady Deppingham."

Lady Deppingham arose reluctantly, stifling a yawn.

They had come to call the new American lawyer "the enemy." No one knew his name or cared to know it, for that matter. Bowles in answer to the telephone inquiries of Saunders said that the new solicitor had taken temporary quarters above the bank and was in hourly consultation with von Blitz. Russia and even much of his time was spent at the mines. Later on, it was commonly reported, he was to take up his residence in Wyckholme's deserted bungalow far up on the mountain side in plain view from the chateau.

Life at the chateau had not been allowed to ebb. The white servants had become good friends despite the hatred which the trained men expert tests for the imposture. American domestic.

Miss Pelham, the stenographer from West Twenty-third street, had set her cap for the unsuspecting Mr. Saunders. She had learned in the wisdom of her sex that he was fancy free. Mr. Saunders, fully warned against the American typewriter girl as a class, having read the most shocking jokes at her expense in the comic papers, was rather shy at the outset, but Britt gallantly came to Miss Pelham's defense and ultimate rescue by emphatically assuring Saunders that she was a perfect lady, guaranteed to cause uneasiness to no man's wife.

"But I have no wife," quickly pronounced Saunders, turning red.

"The devil!" exclaimed Britt, apparently much upset by the revelation. But of this more anon.

Browne conducted the two young women across the drawbridge and to the sunlit edge of the terrace, where two servants awaited them with parasols.

"There he is! See him!" almost whispered Browne, as if the solitary, motionless figure at the foot of the avenue was likely to hear his voice and be frightened away.

The enemy was sitting serenely on one of the broad iron benches just inside the gates to the park, his arms stretched out along the back, his legs extended and crossed. It was quite apparent that he was lazily surveying the chateau, pulling with consistent ease at the cigarette which drooped from his lips.

"Mr. Britt is right," said Mrs. Browne irreverently. She was peering at the stranger through the binoculars. "He is very good looking."

"And you from Boston, too," scoffed Lady Deppingham. Mrs. Browne flushed and smiled deprecatingly.

"Wonder what he's doing here in the grounds?" puzzled Browne.

"It's plain to me that he is resting his aching back on a friendliness that glances brightly at her colleague."

Three men were approaching by the path which led down from the away stables. Browne recognized the dark skinned men as servants in the chateau—the major domo, the chef and the master of the stables.

"Lord Deppingham must have sent them down to pitch him over the wall," he said, with an exalted grin.

"Impossible! My husband is hunting for supplies in the ravine back of—She did not complete the sentence.

The enemy was gazing at the staid native with a friendliness that upset all calculations. It was evident that the meeting was prearranged. There was no attempt at secrecy. The conference, whatever its purpose, had the merit of being quite aboveboard.

In the end the tall solicitor, lifting his helmet with a gesture so significant that it left no room for speculation, turned and sauntered through the broad gateway and out into the forest road. The three servants followed as they had come, by way of the bridge path along the wall.

"The nerve of him!" exclaimed Browne. "That graceful attention was meant for us. I'll have Britt interview those fellows at once. Our kitchen, our stable and our domestic discipline are threatened."

They hastened to the chateau and regarded the resourceful Britt with the disapproval.

That evening he dragged the reluctant Saunders into the privacy of the study.

"Saunders," said Britt calculatingly and evenly, "next thing we'll have to begin hunting for insanity in your family. We haven't heard anything from you on this little point, Lord Deppingham."

"I don't know anything about Mr. Saunders' family," said Deppingham stiffly. Britt looked at him for a moment, mused, and murmured:

"He gave a short, hopeless laugh and said under his breath:

"Only success."

When he finally called the conference adjourned and prepared to depart he calmly turned to the stenographer.

"Did you get all this down, Miss Pelham?"

"Yes, Mr. Britt."

"Good!" Then he went away, leaving the quietest unconsciously depressed by the emphasis he placed upon that single word.

noticed that the enemy had moved into the bungalow. From time to time his gray, blue or white clad figure could be seen directing the operations of the natives who were engaged in rehabilitating Wyckholme's "nest."

The chateau was now under the very eye of the enemy.

CHAPTER IX.

THE AMERICAN BAR.

MR. BRETT wanted at the phone. "Mr. Brett," said Miss Pelham. It was late in the evening, a day or two after.

Heut went into the booth. He was not there long, but when he came out he found that Miss Pelham had disappeared. The coincidence was significant. Mr. Saunders was missing from his seat on the window sill at the far end of the long corridor.

Britt looked his disgust and muttered something characteristic. Having no one near with whom he could communicate, he boldly set off for the hanging garden, where Deppingham had installed the long idle roulette paraphernalia.

"Say," he said without ceremony, "the enemy's in trouble. Bowles just telephoned. There's a lot of excitement in the town. I don't know what to make of it."

"Then why the devil are you breaking in here with it?" growled Deppingham.

"This'll interest you, never fear. There's been a row between von Blitz and the lawyer, and the lawyer has unmercifully thrashed von Blitz. Good Lord, I'd like to have seen it, wouldn't you, Browne? Say, he's all right, isn't he?"

"What was it all about?" demanded Browne.

"It seems that von Blitz is in the habit of kicking his wives," said Britt. "Our friend the enemy met him this evening and told him that no white man could beat his wife, singular or plural, while he was around. von Blitz is a big, ugly chap, and he naturally resented the interference with his divine right. He told the lawyer to go hang or something equivalent. The lawyer knocked him down. From the way Bowles tells it he has been knocked down so successfully in the next five minutes that von Blitz's attempts to stand up were nothing short of a stutter. Moreover, he wouldn't let von Blitz stab him worth a cent. Bowles says he's got von Blitz cowed, and the whole town is walking in circles. It's so dizzy. Well, to make it short, the lawyer has interrupted the game of bridge which was going on."

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Britt, calmly dropping into a chair near by, "this piece is full of spunk."

"Spunk!" cried four voices in unison. Mr. Saunders nodded a plaintive apology.

"Yes, sir, every native servant here is a spy. That's what the enemy was here for today. I've analyzed the situation and I'm right. Ain't I, Mr. Saunders? Of course I am. He came here to tell 'em what to do and how to report our affairs to him. See? Moreover, he's getting the evidence of evidence to prove that Slogans and Wyckholme were men of sound mind up to the hour of their death. He has the depositions of agents and scholars in the Dombay, Adam, Suez and three or four European cities, all along that line. He goes over the day's business at the bank as often as he does to the office for the executives. He knows just how many rubles and saphires, were washed out yesterday and how much they were worth."

"Good Lord!" gasped Browne nervously.

"—It would be a great help. If we can show that you and Mrs.—Lady Deppingham have never spoken occasionally, it'll—"

"Not for all the islands in the world," cried Lady Deppingham. "The ideal of a queen's consort is to be left alone to leave me out of the insanity dodge, as you Americans call it."

"It is necessary to make my husband insane in order to establish the fact that his grandfather was not of sound mind?" queried pretty Mrs. Browne, with her clearest Boston inflection.

"It depends on your husband," said Britt coolly. "If he sticks at anything which may help us to break it that he's certainly insane. That's all I've got to say about it."

"Well, I'm hanged if I'll pose as an insane man," roared Browne.

"Mr. Saunders hasn't asked me to be insane, have you, Mr. Saunders?" asked Lady Agnes in her sweetest scorn.

"I don't apprehend," began Saunders nervously.

"Saunders," said Britt calculatingly and evenly, "next thing we'll have to begin hunting for insanity in your family. We haven't heard anything from you on this little point, Lord Deppingham."

"I don't know anything about Mr. Saunders' family," said Deppingham stiffly. Britt looked at him for a moment, mused, and murmured:

"He gave a short, hopeless laugh and said under his breath:

"Only success."

When he finally called the conference adjourned and prepared to depart he calmly turned to the stenographer.

"Did you get all this down, Miss Pelham?"

"Yes, Mr. Brett."

"Good!" Then he went away, leaving the quietest unconsciously depressed by the emphasis he placed upon that single word.

The next day, but one it was announced that the enemy had moved into the bungalow. From time to time his gray, blue or white clad figure could be seen directing the operations of the natives who were engaged in rehabilitating Wyckholme's "nest."

The chateau was now under the very eye of the enemy.

FLOODS ON OHIO RIVER

Railway Yards in Cincinnati Under Water—Many Towns Flooded

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 4.—A stage of 55 feet in the Ohio river which will bring the water up into the Union Central Station put most of the railroad yards of Cincinnati under water, seriously handicapping the train schedules, besides doing many thousands of dollars damage in this city has taken place.

The water had risen to 50 feet this evening at six o'clock, and before morning one more foot will have been added to the stage. Throughout the "bottoms" of Cincinnati, where are located the majority part of the city's biggest wholesale companies, attention has been directed to get the goods to places of safety. Cartage companies say that they are now two days behind in filling orders.

The owners of many small crafts in the Ohio River have abandoned their property to post; and other places and have retired to allow the river to have its way. All day today there was much scurrying about on the levees and by the times the danger mark was reached all the property had been made safe.

Heavy rains are reported from Pittsburgh, northeastern Ohio and West Virginia so that the water will continue to rise for 48 hours more, and if this comes through the 55-foot stage will be passed probably before Monday morning.

"Say," he said without ceremony, "the enemy's in trouble. Bowles just telephoned. There's a lot of excitement in the town. I don't know what to make of it."

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Britt, calmly dropping into a chair near by, "this piece is full of spunk."

"Spunk!" cried four voices in unison. Mr. Saunders nodded a plaintive apology.

"Yes, sir, every native servant here is a spy. That's what the enemy was here for today. I've analyzed the situation and I'm right. Ain't I, Mr. Saunders? Of course I am. He came here to tell 'em what to do and how to report our affairs to him. See? Moreover, he's getting the evidence of evidence to prove that Slogans and Wyckholme were men of sound mind up to the hour of their death. He has the depositions of agents and scholars in the Dombay, Adam, Suez and three or four European cities, all along that line. He goes over the day's business at the bank as often as he does to the office for the executives. He knows just how many rubles and saphires, were washed out yesterday and how much they were worth."

"Good Lord!" gasped Browne nervously.

"—It would be a great help. If we can show that you and Mrs.—Lady Deppingham have never spoken occasionally, it'll—"

"Not for all the islands in the world," cried Lady Deppingham. "The ideal of a queen's consort is to be left alone to leave me out of the insanity dodge, as you Americans call it."

"It is necessary to make my husband insane in order to establish the fact that his grandfather was not of sound mind?" queried pretty Mrs. Browne, with her clearest Boston inflection.

"It depends on your husband," said Britt coolly. "If he sticks at anything which may help us to break it that he's certainly insane. That's all I've got to say about it."

"Well, I'm hanged if I'll pose as an insane man," roared Browne.

"Mr. Saunders hasn't asked me to be insane, have you, Mr. Saunders?" asked Lady Agnes in her sweetest scorn.

"I don't apprehend," began Saunders nervously.

"Saunders," said Britt calculatingly and evenly, "next thing we'll have to begin hunting for insanity in your family. We haven't heard anything from you on this little point, Lord Deppingham."

"I don't know anything about Mr. Saunders' family," said Deppingham stiffly. Britt looked at him for a moment, mused, and murmured:

"He gave a short, hopeless laugh and said under his breath:

"Only success."

When he finally called the conference adjourned and prepared to depart he calmly turned to the stenographer.

"Did you get all this down, Miss Pelham?"

"Yes, Mr. Brett."

"Good!" Then he went away, leaving the quietest unconsciously depressed by the emphasis he placed upon that single word.

The next day, but one it was announced that the enemy had moved into the bungalow. From time to time his gray, blue or white clad figure could be seen directing the operations of the natives who were engaged in rehabilitating Wyckholme's "nest."

Heavy rains are reported from Pittsburgh, northeastern Ohio and West Virginia so that the water will continue to rise for 48 hours more, and if this comes through the 55-foot stage will be passed probably before Monday morning.

"Say," he said without ceremony, "the enemy's in trouble. Bowles just telephoned. There's a lot of excitement in the town. I don't know what to make of it."

"Then why the devil are you breaking in here with it?" growled Deppingham.

"This'll interest you, never fear. There's been a row between von Blitz and the lawyer, and the lawyer has unmercifully thrashed von Blitz. Good Lord, I'd like to have seen it, wouldn't you, Browne? Say, he's all right, isn't he?"

"What was it all about?" demanded Browne.

"It seems that von Blitz is in the habit of kicking his wives," said Britt. "Our friend the enemy met him this evening and told him that no white man could beat his wife, singular or plural, while he was around. von Blitz is a big, ugly chap, and he naturally resented the interference with his divine right. He told the lawyer to go hang or something equivalent. The lawyer knocked him down. From the way Bowles tells it he has been knocked down so successfully in the next five minutes that von Blitz's attempts to stand up were nothing short of a stutter. Moreover, he wouldn't let von Blitz stab him worth a cent. Bowles says he's got von Blitz cowed, and the whole town is walking in circles. It's so dizzy. Well, to make it short, the lawyer has interrupted the game of bridge which was going on."

from many points up and down the river are reported increasing gains in the volume of water. In Portsmouth, for instance, the river has passed the danger mark and almost half that town is now flooded.

At Parkersburg, W. Va., and Marietta, Ohio, where the Kanawha and Muskingum river enter the Ohio, the merchants have practically all been flooded out of their business and homes.

The Kanawha is emptying more water into the Ohio than the Muskingum and because its mouth is in the best part of Parkersburg much danger is being feared there.

Susquehanna Receding.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 4.—With the gradual recession of the angry waters of the flooded Susquehanna river today, the flood danger in this section of the state is practically over unless there are heavy rains, and these are not expected by the weather bureau.

Today the flood had receded almost two feet from the higher water mark reported yesterday morning, and by tomorrow it is expected that the situation will be generally relieved. Reports from up the river are that much of the snow along the river's tributaries is already melted and the waters are receding. A number of colliers are still idle owing to the fear that the flood may break into the workings, but if the waters continue to subside as they did today, work will be resumed on Monday morning.

Manager Griffith has let a contract for a pitcher's target, to be used by his twirlers at Hot Springs. It is a sort of shooting gallery with moving swings, in which two disks hang from wires and are made to swing. The pitcher takes his stand at the regulation distance and tries to hit the spot on the target. An arrangement has been perfected whereby the balls will roll back to the pitchers. He says he will have a scorer watch the men and make a daily report showing the number of strikes and balls.—Exchange. Who finishes the cigars?

The clever young comedian with Marks Bros. No. A—1 Company. He will be seen next week with a clever cast for three nights at the Edmonton Opera House, and three nights at the Empire Theatre with a complete change of plays and specialties each night.

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH."

"Edmonton never paid itself a greater compliment than when it undertook the production of Mendelssohn's great oratorio, 'Elijah,' and a competent critic when speaking of the coming rendition of this work, which takes place in the First Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday next, March 8th and 9th, 'I shall take great pleasure in sending to the Old Country a full account and they will there be more than ever impressed with what Edmonton really possesses.' The speaker had been present at a rehearsal of the chorus work and is looking forward with great deal of pleasure to the productions next week. No one who really enjoys or hopes to hear the mysteries and the great musicians can absent themselves from the 'Elijah.' It is unquestionably Mendelssohn's greatest effort and has gained, since the days of the first production, the mark of approval and admiration of the world's greatest critics.

Jackson Hanby is endeavoring to give a worthy performance on Tuesday and Wednesday and has gathered about him a chorus of singers that have been diligent in rehearsal and are eager to do the work justice. Messrs. W. Harry Watts and Vernon W. Barford will preside at the organ and piano respectively, while the soloists will be Miss Ethel Webster, soprano; Miss Florence Lumsden, contralto; W. J. Hendra, tenor; Mr. Alfred McIsaac, baritone. The solo parts are difficult throughout and should receive acceptable treatment.

INSURGENTS FIND SUPPORT

he had taken on the Great Waterways Railway Transaction in the Legislature. He had sufficient confidence in the thinking people of the province to believe that if he should at any time decide to seek reelection he would lose nothing by having taken the right course on this occasion.

John R. Boyle denounced the Great Waterways deal in no uncertain language and arranged the government for the nullification of the files. He said the probing for the missing documents would not cease.

Speaker an Insurgent.

Mr. Boyle described an incident of the division in the House which he said was unprecedented in any Legislature in the world. The custom, he said, was to have the opposition call for a registration of the votes by having the "ayes" and the "nays" called out, and then saying that the "ayes" have it. Speaker Fisher, however, said that in his judgment the "nays" had it. Mr. Boyle said that this made the government call for a standing vote something that was never known before in a democratic government. It was clear evidence that Speaker Fisher was with the insurgents.

Mr. Riley sounded a militant note asserting that the immediate future would see the followers of the government called to account for the position they took. He said that if any member believed that after voting for the Woolf amendment he could go back to his constituency and pick out a quiet country school house where he could give a plausible story covering his actions he was under a great misapprehension. This was not the end but the beginning. The country would demand that every member speedily answer to the electors.

The ex-Minister of Public Works, Mr. Roberts, High River, and Dr. Warnock, Pincher Creek, all spoke in much the same strain. They intended to stand for honest government in this young and growing province of Alberta.

Conservatives Speak.

P. E. Batchart, who occupied the chair, was about to close the meeting after the insurgent members had spoken but the audience cried for addresses from some of the most prominent insurgent sympathizers. Those who spoke in response to the call were A. P. Ewing, John Howie, Major Thibault, J. D. Hyndman, and J. K. Macdonald. The cause of the remarks was that they did not in any respect relinquish Conservative principles but said that if it came to upholding the insurgents in opposition to the government, they were willing to step aside and await the rise of some big issue involving political principles before they would again divide on party lines. Honesty was the important consideration in the government of the country.

The Liberals who have avowed independence, thought such action on the part of the insurgents was necessary to bring the Liberal party of Alberta back to the principles upon which Liberalism was founded. The Liberal party always stood for reform in the administration of public affairs. The enthusiasm at all times freely shown was especially apparent when the names of either John X. McDougall or Hon. W. H. Cushing were spoken of as the future prime minister of the province.

Just Good Enough To Be Dangerous

If poor advertising mediums were ENTIRELY worthless they would not be dangerous! For they could not, then, make any appeal whatever to sensible advertisers.

But an advertising medium which has a LITTLE MERIT is, like "a little knowledge," a "dangerous thing." Some business men there are, always, who—for considerations of "cheapness," etc.,—will either rely upon such mediums wholly, or give them an absurdly large part in their advertising campaigns.
